ABOUT Angola, the last great adventure to be discovered

A country of contrasts where landscapes and pristine beaches coexist, with more than a hundred ethnic groups, colonial buildings, and an authentic way of life. From the power of the Atlantic to the silence of the Namib Desert, passing through major natural icons such as the Kalandula Falls — the second largest in Africa — Angola invites travelers to explore a destination off the beaten path.

Angola's economy in transition: tourism driving diversification and sustainable growth

- After years of strong dependence on the oil sector, the country is pursuing a consistent diversification strategy aimed at fostering sustainable growth, job creation, and regional development.
- Tourism is increasingly emerging as a key driver of this transformation.
- Through the National Tourism Plan (PLANATUR), the government aims by 2027 to: double tourism revenues, create 50,000 new jobs, and increase tourism's contribution to GDP to 1.9%.

A tribal journey through Angola, one of the most fascinating and least explored ethnographic territories in Africa.

- In Angola, more than 100 ethnic groups coexist—most of them in the south of the country. Unlike in other African countries where some communities have become tourist attractions, in Angola many of these populations have preserved their customs and ways of life intact, due to the country's prolonged historical isolation.
- The San, Mucubal Cubal, Mucajona Hakaona, Mudimba Dimba, Himbas…
- Responsible tourism as a priority to preserve the legacy of these civilizations.

From Germany, direct flights operate between Frankfurt and Luanda (9 hours), with up to three weekly frequencies. From Switzerland and Austria, connections are available via one stop, mainly through major hubs such as Lisbon (TAP Air Portugal), Frankfurt (SWISS/Lufthansa), Addis Ababa (Ethiopian Airlines), Brussels (Brussels Airlines) or Paris (Air France).

European travellers only need a valid passport with at least six months' validity from the date of entry into the country. A visa is only required if the tourist stay in Angola exceeds 90 days per calendar year.

- Mandatory vaccination: yellow fever
- Recommended vaccinations: hepatitis, tetanus, typhoid, polio, meningitis C, and malaria prophylaxis.

- The dry season (from May to September) is usually the most comfortable time to travel, with mild temperatures.
- The rainy season (from September to May) brings much greener landscapes, especially inland. If the plan is to reach more remote areas, logistics can occasionally become more complex during this period, as heavy rains may affect certain roads and routes at specific times.
